

New Faculty Checklist - Academic Integrity

1. Watch the Intro to Policy ST2 Video to learn about academic integrity at KPU

- Review Policy ST2, Student Academic Integrity.

2. Update your course syllabus to include an Academic Integrity Section with links to Policy ST2, resources, as well as information about your expectations when it comes to Gen AI.

- Review KPU's Position Statement on Academic Integrity and Artificial Intelligence Technology.
- Review the Syllabus Statements for Artificial Intelligence resource

3. Review the assessments in your course and consider if any of them could benefit from being redesigned to reduce the opportunity for academic misconduct and to support stronger student learning. The Teaching & Learning Commons can help with this.

- Review the upcoming Teaching & Learning events and workshops

4. Ensure the instructions for your assignments are clear and explicit about what is permitted.

- Review the Assessment Design Tips to Promote Academic Integrity resource

5. Ensure your course materials (e.g. slides) are role modeling academic integrity and include citations/references where applicable

6. Consider including the Introduction to Academic Integrity Tutorial as part of your course

7. Consider requesting a short presentation from the Academic Integrity Unit for your class at the beginning of the semester

8. Consider having incentives (e.g. bonus marks) to encourage students to attend Learning Centre workshops and events (e.g. Academic Integrity Week)

9. Bookmark the Academic Integrity Resource Shelf and explore the resources within it

10. Plan how you are going to bring up integrity in your course and what resources you would like to share.

- The KPU Library and Learning Centres offer short presentations/tours of their services that can be integrated into your class
- Consider how integrity/ethics shows up in your discipline and look for ways that you can integrate into your classes the theme of integrity throughout the semester

Thank you for contributing to KPU's culture of academic integrity!
