

From: Teaching and Learning Commons

Subject: Introducing Simple Syllabus

Date: Thursday, July 25, 2024 9:11:00 AM

Good Morning,

Simple Syllabus has been purchased at KPU to support the creation, dissemination, and archiving of the consistent, accurate and accessible course syllabi across the institution. Phase 1 implementation will include the academic Faculties, Phase 2 will include Trades and CPS. We had the opportunity to provide an overview to each Faculty Council in June, as well student services, the office of Inclusive Communities, Indigenous leadership and the Academic leadership team. Valuable feedback was received and has been incorporated to shape the template that we are now providing. In this transition template (included within the link below) we have noted the sections that we believe will auto populate when the platform integration is complete. In the meantime, you will have to complete them manually as you have done with previous templates. We have also provided boxes to provide context for new fields and to link key resources to support you. Use of this template during the interim provides you an opportunity to provide feedback during the developmental stage.

For questions and comments, please reach out to tlcommons@kpu.ca.

We will also be seeking faculty to test the system this fall please let us know if you would like to participate.

To access the overview of the template and the fillable version Click here

Teaching & Learning Commons

e tlcommons@kpu.ca

w www.kpu.ca/teaching-and-learning

Through active intentional partnering, the Teaching & Learning Commons provides pedagogical leadership that is grounded in community, ethics, creativity, and care.

Kwantlen Polytechnic University ► Where thought meets action

This email may contain confidential and/or privileged information. If you received this email in error please delete the email and inform the sender immediately. Unauthorized distribution or use is strictly prohibited.